

MYOWARE™ CONSUMER LICENSE

Thank you for your interest in the design files for our MyoWare™ shields! Here you will find EAGLE board (BRD) and schematic (SCH) files for each of our shields. You can use these files to make your own shields, and even come up with your own designs, subject to the limitations below.

You can make as shields as you want for yourself. However, if you sell or distribute such shields, then you are limited to selling or distributing a quantity of 50 of a given shield. If you want to produce greater quantities of shields, please contact Advancer Technologies so that we can discuss the terms of a commercial license.

You will not use any of our trademarks on shields that you make, and you will be sure to provide recipients with a link to the Advancer Technologies website. Since the shields you make would be made without our supervision, you also agree that that Advancer Technologies shall not be liable for any claims of third parties based on the shields you make.

If you want to share these design files with others and/or if you modify these designs and want to share the modified designs with others, you are able to do so as long as you include these terms with the files, and to notify the recipients that they, and any further downstream recipients, are also bound by these terms.